A Central Intelligence Agency administrative officer was stabbed and slashed with a five-inch hunting knife early today and robbed of $40 on a darkened street near Gallaudet College, police said.

James D. Pembroke, 42, white, of 5110 Worthington Drive, Westmoreland Hills, Montgomery County, is in critical condition at Casualty Hospital with wounds in the face, shoulder and back.

Police Capt. Nunzio Bonaccorsy said police are looking for a 22-year-old colored man, "a well-known police character," who earlier in the evening had visited an uptown 14th-st. bar with Mr. Pembroke.

ACCOUNT

Capt. Bonaccorsy said Mr. Pembroke, from his hospital bed—gave police this account:

Shortly after 10:30 last night, Mr. Pembroke met the man outside a bar, then decided to go to another bar with him for a beer.

The man promised to "get him a girl" and around midnight they left the second bar, got into Mr. Pembroke's auto, and at the man's direction, drove to Gallaudet and Kendall streets ne.

There, outside an apartment house, the man said the girl "was bashful," and he had to go to her apartment first and "arrange things."

The man reappeared, said things were arranged—the girl would come out shortly. The two men took a brief stroll.

Suddenly, the man slugged Mr. Pembroke, knocking him to the ground. He got up, saw a knife in the man's hand, and started running.

COLLAPSES

Police said Mr. Pembroke was stabbed and slashed in the back as he ran, and he collapsed.

Two policemen, on routine patrol, found him semi-conscious in the street.

They called for Park Police Sgt. Alfred Beye and his police dog, Lucky, who sniffed the knife out in a nearby alley. At dawn, police found Mr. Pembroke's wallet, empty.
